Greene County

Concerning the distinguished patriot, Gen. Nathaniel Greene, in honor of whom this county was named, Col. S. H. Boyd, in his "Historical Essays," says: "The spot where he is buried is unknown. No imposing shaft stands out in bold relief to catch the patriot's eye and invite him to prayer, or to drop a tear over a nation's hero. No tablet, rich in design and elaborate in finish, spreads itself out to commemorate the heroism and fame of departed greatness. Not even a rude head board marks the spot where Gen. Greene rests. But Missouri remembered him, and raised to him a monument, and immortalized him by giving his name to the fairest, freest garden of her dominions, Southwest Missouri."

Well may Greene County be called the fairest garden of them all. It is located on the Ozark Plateau, in the southwestern part of the State of Missouri, about forty miles from the Arkansas line on the south and about sixty miles from the western boundary of the state.

In outline it is nearly square, its dimensions being about twenty-three miles by thirty miles. Thus it contains approximately six hundred and eighty-eight square miles.

Springfield, the county seat and fourth largest city in the state, has an altitude of 1,345 feet. Thus situated, Greene county can boast of an equitable climate and pure air, not equaled in this section of our country.

Equal in importance is the purity and abundance of the water supply. The surface water, filtered through porous limestone, gathers in cavernous reservoirs, that furnish an unfailing supply for the springs which water the country. The supply has never been affected by drought.

Aside from her agricultural products, the value of which is well known, Greene county has within her boundaries, other vast resources which have been more or less developed. These are deposits of coal, iron, lead, zinc, copper, silver, gold, petroleum, building stone, ornamental stone, and mineral water.

The destiny of the soils in the hands of intelligent, capable, farmers, who maintain its fertility by the most improved and modern methods of crop rotation and fertilization.

The population of the county in 1910 was 63,831, an increase of 21% over 1900.

The taxable wealth of the county as compiled from the state auditors records for taxes of 1915, was $26,641,793.74.

Springfield is a busy, wide-awake, modern city. She offers to the home seeker the best advantages from every standpoint. Climate, all that progress in the religious and educational world has to offer, beautiful home sites, varied business opportunities, and from a mercantile standpoint, always in every department, the best the market affords.

The progressive and well stocked retail stores of the city have gained for it the distinction of being the great retail shopping center of southwest Missouri.

Special mention should be made of the Springfield High School, with its magnificent buildings and complete equipment, of Drury College and the State Normal and Industrial School located in Springfield.

The Commercial Club is composed of commercial and professional men and capitalists, are co-operating with the farmers of the county in building up the entire community, and the advent of the automobile has bound closer the ties between city and country residents. The welfare of the one is essentially necessary to the welfare of the other, and a closer bond of union should always be maintained.

With this in view the publishers of this volume, have compiled it with a determination to serve alike the business men of the cities of Greene county and every individual whose name appears in the book.

The Commercial Club of The Queen City

Cooperation of the various community interests and industries is indispensable to its growth and prosperity. Without it nothing can be achieved, with it, nothing is impossible.

Among the splendid organizations of Springfield making for a greater and better city none is more unselfish and active than the "COMMERCIAL CLUB." This association is composed of representative professional and business men who give freely of their time and money for anything looking for the advancement of Springfield, as a city or any of its individual industries in particular. The increase of the city depends upon the increase of its units.

Probably the most important function of this association is to bring in and establish new industries, such as manufacturing of various kinds, branch houses of already established business, and to advertise to prospective residents the desirability of the "QUEEN CITY" as a sphere for worthy activity and a home. In this highly important work the club has the hearty and active support of every citizen of Springfield, who, as they realize the results achieved will still further increase its power and efficiency.

The rather technical and intricate matters pertaining to railways, transportation rates, discriminations, good roads and the like, upon which in these days of close competition even between cities for territorial patronage, so much depends, are also carefully considered by its committees and many abuses have been remedied.

In other words the COMMERCIAL CLUB is the official booster for a Greater Springfield and guardian of its various industries. Every additional power given to it, every assistance rendered it, rebounds immediately to the City of Springfield directly, and every citizen in it, indirectly. A strong, healthy Commercial Club is a good symptom of growth.

The present officers of this association are J. N. Rathbone, President, C. B. Garlick, Vice-President, C. O. Sperry, Secretary and G. T. Hine, Treasurer.

Many, many years ago farms around Springfield, in Greene County, and throughout the Ozark country, could be had in exchange for a few o'possum and 'coon skins or a Texas pony and saddle. Just think of the difference in values of real estate 25 to 50 years ago and the present time.

The average increase in population of cities and towns every where is 25% in 10 years. This means that more land will have to be cultivated, more live stock produced, more new homes will have to be built and more stores provided. This all increases the value of real estate. Did you ever stop to think how many dollars have been made out of real estate in our country? Land or city property bought at it's value today is worth more every day, month and year you keep it, besides being a home.

See us if you are interested to buy, sell or exchange real estate or to secure a farm or city loan.

James Oliver

No. 11 Sulky

The James Oliver No. 11 Sulky has the enviable record of having plowed more acres successfully than any other sulky plow in the world.

It is a plow that you can depend upon to successfully plow hard ground. You never know when you will run into this condition but if you have a No. 11 on your farm you will be prepared to meet it.

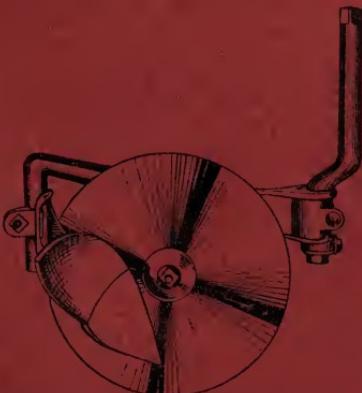

The Oliver trash covering device, the combined rolling coulter and jointer is a recent invention of the Oliver Chilled Plow Works that has caused more favorable comments among farmers than any plow improvement that has been made for years.

It will absolutely put all trash and weeds on the bottom of the furrow where the harrow teeth cannot pull them out.

If you are not interested in wheel plows you know that the old Oliver No. 40 series of walking plows is the standard from which all others are made. You can depend upon one of these plows doing good work for you as long as it lasts.

Come in and look over our stock. We will be glad to explain to you all the good features of Oliver chilled plows.

Now You Can Come and Go

WHEN there's an entertainment at the church—or a good show in town, or a dance, or a party at the home of a distant neighbor—then you will be glad to own a Harley-Davidson. You'll find a dozen good uses for it during the day, of course, but when the day's task is done and you are too tired to enjoy walking or driving, then you really enjoy your

With a sidecar (detachable in a few minutes) the Harley-Davidson becomes a family vehicle, a never-ending source of fresh air recreation—wonderfully soothing to tired nerves and muscles.

Considering all that the Harley-Davidson Motorcycle and sidecar will mean to you, it is really easier for you to own one than to do without. Arrange for a demonstration today.

James Oliver

No. 11 Sulky

The James Oliver No. 11 Sulky has the enviable record of having plowed more acres successfully than any other sulky plow in the world.

It is a plow that you can depend upon to successfully plow hard ground. You never know when you will run into this condition but if you have a No. 11 on your farm you will be prepared to meet it.

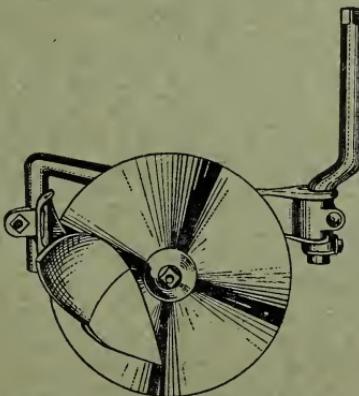

The Oliver trash covering device, the combined rolling coulter and jointer is a recent invention of the Oliver Chilled Plow Works that has caused more favorable comments among farmers than any plow improvement that has been made for years.

It will absolutely put all trash and weeds on the bottom of the furrow where the harrow teeth cannot pull them out.

If you are not interested in wheel plows you know that the old Oliver No. 40 series of walking plows is the standard from which all others are made. You can depend upon one of these plows doing good work for you as long as it lasts.

Come in and look over our stock. We will be glad to explain to you all the good features of Oliver chilled plows.

Gentlemen:

In regard to the Falcon Brand shingles, I can say they are better in length, thickness, and in quality of wood, and will make a much better roof in every respect than the cheaper grade of shingles. Yours very truly,

Gentlemen:

Out of the 32,000 shingles you sold Mr. E. E. Fielden we found them all clear, even length, and none narrower than two and one half inches.

Dear Sirs:—A month ago I began feeding from the silo purchased of you last year. Am highly pleased with the result. Consider it an economical and efficient feed. Barring accident or bad luck, I expect to install another of the same kind and size next season.

Yours truly,
C. H. DALRYMPLE.

Gentlemen:

In regard to the Falcon Brand shingles I can recommend them to be a first class shingle in every way. The quality of the wood and the thickness and length of the shingles are exactly as represented. They make a better roof and will go further than a cheaper shingle.

Respectfully,
A. H. PARRISH.

"THERE NOW—LET IT RAIN! NO MORE LEAKY ROOFS FOR MINE. I CAN DEPEND ON GAL-VA-NITE.

No painting—no patching—no fussing with leaks—no skilled labor to pay for—no after expense—that's the short story of GAL-VA-NITE.

This ready to lay roofing is so much better than shingles and so much easier and cheaper to lay that it is no wonder that the demand for GAL-VA-NITE is so great.

GAL-VA-NITE costs so little and serves so well on steep or flat roofs that you cannot afford to put up with the trouble and expense of leaky roofs. The best way to make repairs is to cover the old roof with a new roof of GAL-VA-NITE. Anyone can do the work with but a hammer and jackknife.

GAL-VA-NITE is waterproofed with mineral asphalt and weather-proofed with a perfect insulation of flaked mica. It is put up in rolls of 108 square feet, complete with nails, lap cement and full directions for laying.

Call and get samples. Makes no difference what you're building. You ought to use GAL-VA-NITE.

THE CHINCH BUG.

From Report 657 Bureau of Entomology, L. O. Howard, Chief, Washington, D. C.

Few insects have been the direct cause of such enormous pecuniary losses as the chinch bug. No other insect native to the Western Hemisphere has spread its devastating hordes over a wider area of country with more fatal effects to the staple grains of North America than has this one. Some of this insects own habits, emphasizing as they do the effects of weather conditions, are among the most potent influences that serve to hold it within bounds by giving its tendency to excessive increase a decidedly spasmadic character.

NATURAL ENEMIES OF THE CHINCH BUG.

Chinch bugs have few predaceous insect enemies, none of which, owing perhaps to their repugnant odor, appears to be of any very great importance when it comes to surppressing a serious invasion.

Inland the common "quail" or bobwhite is the only bird that can be said to devour the chinch bug in considerable numbers. It is said that from 300 to 400 chinch bugs have been found in the crops of bobwhites. As the bobwhite is one of our most highly prized game birds, it is slaughtered annually in tremendous numbers, frequently with no object except sport. As a result the helpfulness of the quail against chinch bugs is greatly diminished. It would seem that as important an enemy of the chinch bug as this bird is known to be would receive protective immunity throughout the agricultural regions and that farmers would see to it that protective laws were not only enacted but also stringently enforced.

DESTRUCTION OF CHINCH BUGS WHILE IN HIBERNATION.

The first effort that may be made with a view to warding off an attack of chinch bugs is to destroy them in their winter quarters. This can be accomplished by burning all dried grass, especially such as grows in clumps, notably broom sedge or sage grass, leaves, or other rubbish during winter or early spring, especially during early winter.

The burning of grasses and rubbish about the farm during winter to destroy hibernating chinch bugs has been often recommended and is doubtless the most effective measure to be taken against future ravages of the pest.

SOWING DECOY PLATS OF ATTRACTIVE GRAINS OR GRASSES IN EARLY SPRING.

Judging from the manner in which the overwintered adults are attracted to hills of young corn, wheat fields, or plats of panic and foxtail grasses, it has always seemed to the writer practicable to take advantage of this habit and sow small patches of millet, Hungarian grass, spring wheat, or even corn, early in the spring and thus bait the adults as they come forth from their places of hibernation. Their instincts will prompt them to seek out the places likely to afford the most desirable food supply for their progeny, and if an artificial supply can be offered them that will be more attractive than that furnished by nature, the bugs will certainly not overlook the fact, but will take advantage of it to congregate and deposit their eggs there, whereupon eggs, young, and adults can be summarily dealt with a little later by plowing both bugs and their food under and harrowing and rolling the ground to keep the former from crawling to the surface and escaping.

SUMMARY OF REMEDIAL AND PREVENTIVE MEASURES

In summing up the matter of remedial and preventive measures for the control of the chinch bug, it may be stated that the insects can be destroyed in their places of hibernation by the use of fire. They can be destroyed while in the act of migrating from one field to another by barriers or deep furrows supplemented by post holes and by burying them under the surface of the ground with the plow and harrow, or the latter method may be applied after the bugs have been massed upon plats of some kind of vegetation for which the bugs are known to have a special fondness, these decoy plats being so arranged as either to attract the females and induce them to oviposit therein or to intercept an invasion from wheat fields into corn fields. When these decoys have been turned under with a plow and the surface immediately smoothed and packed by harrow and roller the bugs will be destroyed, while in the cornfields they can be destroyed on the plants by the application of kerosene emulsion. Without vigilance and prompt action, however, only indifferent results are to be expected from any of these measures.

There are several spraying materials which can be used effectively against the bugs after they have been congregated on the young corn, but unfortunately, most of these are injurious to the plants. Kerosene emulsion of 5 per cent strength will generally kill the bugs and will not always injure the corn. The stock solution is made by boiling 1 pound of good lye soap in 1 gallon of water, adding this to 2 gallons of kerosene, and stirring the mixture with a paddle for 5 to 10 minutes. A better way to stir the mixture is to put the nozzle of the spray in the vessel and pump the liquid back into the vessel for five minutes.

Dilute the mixture to a 4 or 5 per cent solution by adding soft water. Some of the proprietary spraying materials and cattle dips have been used to kill the bugs where they have become alarmingly abundant. One serious objection to these materials is that they are very often injurious to the plants. However, it is sometimes better to sacrifice the first few rows and save the cornfield than to let the bugs have their way.

FALL ARMY WORM AND RECOMMENDATIONS FOR ITS CONTROL.

Warning—Great care should be taken that cattle and other stock are kept from pasturing in the fields where the grass and other crops have been poisoned with arsenicals; also, that poisoned plants are not fed to stock.

The U. S. department of agriculture recommends the use of arsenicals as the most satisfactory means of destroying the worms, though other measures may be advisable in special cases. Where insecticides are used the directions given herewith must be followed implicitly, otherwise very serious injury may result. Among the poisons that may be used are the arsenate of lead, Paris green, and London purple. None of these poisons should be used upon vegetation that is afterwards to be used for forage. Paris green and London purple are dangerous to use upon corn on account of the danger of injury to or the destruction of plants. In most cases it will be best to apply these poisons in dry forms instead of with water. Dry applications can be made by sifting the poisons upon the plants through light cloth sacks or by means of blowers or dusting machines. Liquid applications must be made with spraying apparatus to be effective. For this reason the dry applications meet the present emergency better than liquid ones.

Arsenate of lead in powdered form is recommended above all other arsenicals because it will not injure the foliage of any of the field crops grown in the South, even when applied without the addition of any carriers. The cost may be reduced by mixing with two or three times its weight of flour and dusting upon whatever crops the worms may be attacking. Paris green is next in effectiveness and if used in the dust form should be mixed with four or five times its weight of flour or air-slaked lime. Flour is the most satisfactory carrier to use, as the lime has the tendency simply to drive the worms to other vegetation. Lime, however, has the advantage of preventing the burning of the foliage. London purple may be used, but should be applied with air-slaked lime or flour, as recommended in the case of Paris green.

Wherever it is feasible to use liquid sprays, the paste form of arsenate of lead may be used by dissolving 2 to 2½ pounds in 50 gallons of water. Paris green may be used at the rate of about 10 ounces to each 50 gallons of water, but if so used 2 pounds of freshly slaked lime should also be added.

On forage crops and others in the case of which unfortunate results might follow the use of arsenicals, other expedients must be adopted. A most effective measure for destroying the worms without injuring the crop is to mix 100 pounds of wheat bran with a couple of pounds of either Paris green or powdered arsenate of lead, or, if these are not obtainable, use 3 pounds of London purple, bringing the mass to a stiff dough by the use of 1½ to 2 gallons of molasses. If the whole mass is thoroughly mixed and dropped about on the ground where the worms are at work they will be attracted by it, feed upon it, and be destroyed thereby. Many planters prefer this method to dusting or spraying, and the poisoned bait is said by them to attract worms from 5 to 10 inches away.

In some cases where the ground is hard, with little vegetation, a heavy roller or a brush drag may be used to advantage in crushing the worms.

When the worms have become full grown with rare exceptions they descend an inch or two into the ground, construct an earthen cell, and pass into a pupal state. It has been demonstrated by several different experts in widely separated localities that from 50 to 95 per cent of these pupae can be destroyed in the ground by thorough shallow cultivation. This can be done by disking or the use of a spring-tooth harrow, and the efficiency of the measure will depend upon the thoroughness with which the work has been done. Cultivation of the ground between the rows of corn and cotton has been found to destroy nearly all of these pupae where the soil is sandy and has been thoroughly cultivated under hot midday sun.

For fields threatened with invasion but not actually attacked, a deep furrow should be plowed out around the entire circumference of the field; into this the caterpillars will fall, when they may be crushed by dragging a heavy log through the furrow. If the soil is such as to be somewhat impervious to water, this furrow may be kept partly filled with water, on the surface of which a small quantity of kerosene may be poured, which will kill the worms almost immediately when they come into contact with it.

Since the worms seem invariably to consume the grass and other vegetation growing in fields before attacking either corn or cotton, it should prove an important method of protection to spray or dust grass and weeds in cornfields threatened with attack with arsenate of lead according to the methods advised above.

To summarize the situation, the department recommends the speedy application of arsenical poisons and the working of the ground wherever practicable, in order to prevent further damage.

VETERINARY NOTES FOR STOCK OWNERS.

The following notes are not meant as a complete veterinary guide, which would be out of place in this kind of work, but are intended as a kind of first aid to the sick.

HORSES.

COUGHS AND COLDS if treated in time usually pass away without much trouble. At first appearance of either it is well to take your horse's temperature and pulse. If it is not much above normal a good warm bran mash with one oz. of nitre in it will help to relieve him. If he does not show improvement by the next day give him every four hours twenty drops of aconite in a little water from your syringe or a bottle. Should he continue to get worse it may be well to call the doctor.

When the horse is recovering from sickness or is in need of a tonic, the best is Fowler's solution of Arsenic. Water your horse from a pail and give him one fluid ounce of Fowler's solution in the drinking water for eight days, then discontinue for six days and begin for eight days more; each ounce of solution contains five grains of arsenic. The reason for discontinuing is in order that it cannot accumulate too much in the system at one time.

FOUNDER—If shod, remove shoes and give one quart of linseed oil and a bran mash with one oz. of nitre. Make swabs of old sacking and keep them on his feet and keep them wet until the inflammation seems to be gone. Rest and time is the best cure.

SPAVIN, CURB, RINGBONE SPLINTS should be treated with a blister composed of $1\frac{1}{2}$ drams of Biniodide of Mercury and one oz. of lard. Rub it into the affected part and in about three days apply a little linseed oil or lard so that the scales will come off easily. If one application does not cure apply again after three weeks.

WORMS—A drench composed of three oz. linseed oil and one oz. of turpentine given twice a day for three days, followed on the third day by a quart of linseed oil will generally remove them.

CUTS OR WOUNDS—Get the injured surface as clean as possible by washing, and applying a good healing lotion. One composed of 2 drams each of sulphate of zinc and acetate of lead in a pint of water is about as good as any. This is a good lotion to apply to scratches or cracked heels.

FOR RINGWORM on horses or any kind of stock Iodine ointment which can be obtained at any drug store is a good cure.

FOR FISTULA—When everything else seems to fail get some crude petroleum and a syringe having a long nozzle. Insert it in the false membrane and fill with oil. Do this about every second day and in four to six weeks it will effect a cure unless it is a hard case and may take longer.

LICE—Fifty parts of crude petroleum and one part of crude carbolic acid is a sure cure. Should be applied to horses or cattle with a spray. A few gunny sacks soaked in it and wound round a post in the hog lot will soon cure them.

FOR WARTS—Use glacial acetic acid which will remove them without leaving any soreness if applied every day for a few days.

OZOTURIA or Monday morning disease, as it is sometimes called usually comes after a day or two of rest. Immediately it is noticed give one quart of linseed oil and follow it with one oz. doses of sweet spirits of nitre in some warm water every four hours, until he has had about three doses. Keep the horse warm and get the bowels and kidneys to act and do not work the horse until he seems completely cured.

SWEENEY—Rub the affected parts with equal parts of turpentine and linseed oil. This is one of the best mild blisters known, and can be used for sore throat or sprains.

CATTLE.

Normal temperature is 100 to 102, pulse 36 to 48, and respirations 15 to 20 per minute.

Cattle affected with Foot and Mouth Disease, lose their appetite and become stiff and lame in their movements and on closer examination small pimples and sores are formed around the lips and around the tops of the hoofs. It runs its course in about two weeks and only about two per cent of the cases are fatal. A good wash to apply to the sores is two drams each of sulphate of zinc and acetate of lead in a pint of water.

BLOATING is often relieved by administering half a tea cup full of baking soda dissolved in a quart of sweet milk and given as a drench, but in a bad case the animal ought to be tapped with trocar and canula. The place to tap the animal is six to eight inches (according to size) forward and downward from the point of the hip. Better wash the place with some disinfectant first.

BLACK LEG—ITS SYMPTOMS AND PREVENTIONS

Extracts taken from Circular Number 31, (fifth revision), issued April 29th, 1914, by the Bureau of Animal Industry, U. S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

The symptoms of Black Leg are so characteristic that the disease is easily recognized. The first symptoms may be either of a general or a local nature, though more frequently of the latter. The animal moves around with difficulty, frequently lies down, and when water is near at hand, drinks at short intervals and but little at a time. The visible mucous membranes are at first dark red and congested, but they change in the course of 12 hours to a dirty leaden or purplish color.

The most important diagnostic feature is the development of a tumor or swelling under the skin. The swelling may appear on any part of the body or limbs. It is frequently seen on the thigh or shoulder. Tumors may also appear on the neck, the chest, the flank or the rump. At first they are small and very painful. They increase rapidly in size and may in a few hours cover a large portion of the body.

If slight pressure is made on the tumor, a cracking sound is heard, and percussion gives a clear, resonant tone, due to the collected gas in the affected tissue. The tumor is cool to the touch and painless in the center, the skin over it is dry and parchment like. When the tumor is lanced, a frothy dark red fluid is discharged, and smells like rancid butter and decomposition takes place very soon after death.

No pain is manifested when the center of the tumor is lanced, but as the knife reaches the warm inflamed part the animal will bellow loudly and flinch. With very few exceptions the disease terminates fatally, death generally occurring from twelve to thirty-six hours after appearance of symptoms. A few cases linger from three to four days, and the disease may terminate in recovery.

out straight. A dark colored frothy discharge flows from the nostrils and the anus. Decomposition takes place soon after death.

APPEARANCES AFTER DEATH—The carcass of an animal soon becomes very distended by gas. The two legs on the upper side stand PREVENTIVE MEASURES—Remedial treatment is of little avail, consequently our principle recourse against the disease is prevention. Answers to numerous inquiries received from cattle owners by the chief of the Bureau of Animal Industry at Washington, D. C. The following salient points concerning the use of Black Leg vaccine are presented below in a concise manner for emphasis.

1.—Owing to the fact that a number of cattle owners have attempted to modify or have otherwise deviated from the printed directions, losses have occurred which might have been easily avoided. It is therefore urgently recommended to follow the directions implicitly, and especially to refrain from castrating, spaying and dehorning at the time of vaccination.

2.—Vaccine which for any reason is not used should be returned to this office immediately, and in acknowledgement of the same a new application blank will be forwarded to the sender.

3.—All vaccine should be used within three months of the date on the back of each package. After this period has elapsed the vaccine may be used to advantage in cases of emergency, as a first vaccine, but to insure immunity it is advisable to revaccinate with fresh vaccine in the course of two weeks.

4.—The only vaccine distributed by this department is a single powdered vaccine for the prevention of Black Leg, and it may be injected at any season of the year.

5.—Black Leg vaccine is distributed by this department free of charge to all stock owners who pledge themselves to report the results in accordance with the instructions.

6.—Neither vaccine nor application blanks will be forwarded to any person for distribution—each stock owner must apply in his own behalf.

7.—The immunizing properties of the vaccine are not usually imparted until ten or twelve days following the vaccination.

8.—Deaths of animals within one or two days after vaccination should not be attributed to the vaccine, but to the fact that they were already infected before vaccination.

9.—It is not advisable to vaccinate an animal after the symptoms of black leg have developed as the vaccine is a preventive and not a curative agent.

10.—Vaccination is generally followed by insignificant symptoms. In some cases there is a slight rise in temperature, and a minute swelling may sometimes be noted at the point of injection.

11.—Calves vaccinated before they are six months old lose the artificial immunity produced, and should be revaccinated before the beginning of the next black leg season.

12.—Animals which have been vaccinated may be revaccinated after an interval of two weeks without any unfavorable results.

13.—It is not advisable to vaccinate pregnant heifers within one month of the time for them to calve.

14.—Immunity is not transmitted by the immunized parent to the offspring.

15.—Do not vaccinate cattle while they are over-heated.

16.—Animals should be vaccinated on the side of the neck just in front of the shoulder and always on the same side.

17.—The only satisfactory method of administering the vaccine distributed by this department is by the use of a hypodermic syringe. The method of soaking a string or cord in our vaccine solution and inserting a portion of the cord under the skin cannot be recommended.

18.—Anthrax is an entirely different disease from black leg, and therefore black leg vaccine does not act as a preventive against anthrax. Anthrax vaccine is not distributed by this department.

19.—There are two blanks connected with each supply of vaccine which the owners are requested to fill out. First application blank for vaccine is to be filled out in applying for vaccine or immediately upon its receipt. Second blanks received with the vaccine for reports of the effects within seven days after vaccination, which are to be filled out and returned not later than the expiration of ten days.

How and where to apply for Black Leg Vaccine. A regular application blank will be mailed to any stock owner who so requests by the chief of The Bureau of Animal Industry, U. S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

FOOT AND MOUTH DISEASE.

Foot and mouth disease is an acute, infectious, contagious disease characterized by an initial high fever, followed by small vesicles or blisters that appear principally in the mouth or under the tongue, and under the lips; also in the interdigital space of the cloven footed animals.

The active cause of the disease has never been isolated, although it is claimed to be due to an ultra-microscopic microorganism; that this microorganism passes through the finest filter, and is, of such minute structure that it cannot be seen by microscopes now at our command.

Whatever the cause may be we know that it is of extremely contagious character, and may be carried by immune animals, implements, and utensils used around infected stock, or it may be carried on hides, or in fact in any way that has a direct connection with diseased animals, or with pastures, corrals, or stables, that have been used by affected animals.

Cattle are most susceptible, then come hogs and sheep. Man may become infected by handling diseased stock, eating diseased meat, or drinking unboiled or unpasteurized milk or milk products from a diseased cow. In man the disease runs a very mild course and is not to be feared. In children, the disease may be of more serious type, since gastro enteritis may follow, causing considerable distress. Horses and chickens are practically immune, although cases have been reported. The chief danger from horses and chickens lies in the fact that they may carry the disease from infected animals or farms to healthy animals.

Foot and mouth disease is a very old disease, and from time to time has made its appearance in nearly every country in the world.

As has been stated, the first symptom is a high fever, varying from 104 to 106 degrees. This may be followed by a chill, the animal standing off by itself, its back arched, and with a general appearance of distress. If the mouth is examined, small vesicles or blisters may be seen on the tongue or under lips. These blisters may be very small, but as the disease progresses will grow larger and will run together. There is profuse salivation, which increases as the blisters break and the animal makes a peculiar smacking sound with its teeth much the same as an old person without any teeth might make. There is intense pain and the animal, while usually unable to eat, may make painful efforts to take food, rolling its head around in an effort to swallow.

At this period the animal may show signs of lameness, and upon examination the typical blisters in the inter-digital space, or just above the top of the hoof. They may also appear on the teats or udder. When the animal lies down it frequently stretches its neck, and extends its head parallel with the ground. As the disease progresses the blisters or vesicles break, leaving raw red sores which in many cases may join each other. If the tongue is taken hold of, many times the entire tongue covering will come off on the hand. One of the characteristic signs of foot and mouth disease is the sloughing of the affected membranes. In ordinary stomatitis, or sore mouth of calves, or in forage abrasions with infection, the affected part is oftentimes raised and feels hard to touch; but, as has been said, in foot and mouth disease if the blister or raw sore is rubbed, dead tissue will adhere to the hand. If the foot lesions are severe, the entire hoof becomes loose, and in exceptional cases may drop off.

Hogs seldom show the characteristic mouth lesions at first, but they suffer severely with the foot lesions. The disease appears to work very rapidly in them. In the evening they may be running around and eating as usual, but in the morning while they are perfectly willing to eat, they move with the greatest difficulty. They may not be able to stand up, but move around on their knees.

The soles of their feet are swollen and hot, and the animal shows every sign of intense pain. Lesions may be later found in the mouth, but in hogs the foot lesions are generally the first symptoms noticed. Sheep are not so susceptible as cattle or hogs, but when they do become affected the foot lesions predominate.

HOG CHOLERA—SYMPTOMS.

Young hogs are more susceptible and naturally show the first symptoms. One or more of the young ones will be seen to lag behind the others. They refuse their feed, may seem to suffer from cold, shiver, will seek their sleeping quarters, be restless and anxious, ears hot and lopped down; back may be arched; they may stand cross-legged and when they walk may do so with an uncertain wabbling gait in fact they seem to be paralyzed in their hind quarters, and when handled may emit a peculiar squeal.

Dirrahoea or constipation may be present, but in most cases diarrhoea with blood-stained feces will follow constipation as food becomes decomposed in the intestines. Breathing or respiration is hurried and the animal may show signs of pain. Skin lesions present themselves in the form of small dark red or purple spots on the abdomen, inner side of the thighs or under the arms.

Visitation of neighbors carrying the micro-organism on their shoes from infected herds to uninfected herds are responsible for 33 per cent of the outbreaks; birds carry the infection 27.5 per cent of the outbreaks; dogs are responsible for 6.5 per cent of the outbreaks; streams and irrigation ditches are responsible for 8 per cent of the outbreaks; hogs on adjoining places in 4.5 per cent of the outbreaks; new stock from infected sources in 10 per cent of the outbreaks, and other sources 6:5 per cent of the outbreaks.

In the treatment of hog cholera, some authorities have stated that there is only one method of treatment, The Dorset Niles Method of Immunization. This treatment accepted by the farmer in its literal meaning has undoubtedly cost the farmers many millions of dollars. In all infectious contagious diseases sanitation comes first. And if hog cholera symptoms appear in your herd it is advisable to call the state veterinarian. To keep up-to-date on the subject of Hog Cholera, write The Bureau of Animal Industry, U. S.
